The Past Two Weeks Have Boon Remarkalle For the Extensive Field Developments.

THE SUPPLY MEN IN DISTRESS

And Say They are Having to Carry the Producers in Light Calibre Territory.

the past week in olldom has also been productive of a large number of bove the average calibre, and were located in nearly every the broad domain of oildom. In spect, the past two weeks have emarkable in the history of field cents, and it is a record that be duplicated in any two weeks past twelve months. While is were far above the average producers, the number was cor dingly large, while their distri-was found to embrace overy latf producing territory, and which bounded in all the different for-general complaint and protests of the producers throughout both against the manufacturers of oi; well supplies and machinery for arbitrarily maintaining high prices has at least had its effect, and it now looks as if their pleadings and demands may yet produce results. The manufacturers are beginning to realize the true situation, and are finding out their squeezing policy cannot, if persisted in, but eventuate in their own disadvantage, as well as forcing the small producer to hang up the drill and suspend further operations. While they are beginning to loosen up a triffe, there has been no appreciable reduction in supplies, or any radical cut on machinery On several articles in the past week, a slight decline from former prices is to be noted, while the reduction in the price of cordage was perhaps the greatest, but nothing near an equitable basis with the price paid the producer for his product. It is the general opinion of the producing fraternity now, that a tendency to reduce high prices has set in, that the manufacturers will, from the force of conditions, put prices down to a point where the owners of light calibre territory can resum operations again. Conditions from near-ip every view point tend to a still low-er figure for crude, and the average producer may as well make up his mind to this fact, and meet the situation in as philosophical manner as possible. There must be a custailment of production instead of increasing the ins and a piling up of stocks. As ong as stocks show the present large ain, and a corresponding discrepancy between shipments and runs, it is only natural that the market will follow in he wake of such conditions. The profucer must bear in mind that overproduction always entails a low market and the only preventative for these results is to stop the drill until the indisputable principle of supply and de-mand regulates it. Producers themselves are mainly responsible for the present situation, as is shown by the igures of operations for the month just past. This important and interesting document clearly presents this stubborn fact, showing an increased activity in almost every locality of the

ducing Trenton rock cruce, as well as to the eastern fields. The report shows that there is no only an increase in completed wells, but that in the volume of new work, the percentage of gain is quite large. while this is a fact, the producer should not fall to understand that this falling off is chargeable alone to the Gaines pool in Tioga county, Pennsylvania, which falled to maintain its big production established in April. It was Since last week's account of their df-like "a flash in the pan," but the figures show too, that the deep sand terpertinent to add in this connection, that if the record of big wells and good producers is anything near maintained throughout the month, as has been shown in the first week, June's increase in new production will undoubtedly be footed up. Producers can, if they iril, and command a fair and equitselves hold the key to the situation, if reason and concord of action barrels a day, H. H. Burns' their arguments and reasons asserted have attributed every reason but the To-day, two of the head officials of the independent organns, one of the Pure Oll Company, the other identified with the Uni-States Pipe Line Company, before consolidation, said to the writer: There is no use of talking and specu lating upon the cause of crude being he nose on your fact, rushing the drill saying the convention was the largest and most enthusiastic for years it may be true. If you consider that one-third of the four or five hundred present were largest as no one responsible for the four or five hundred present were kepublicans, there to witness the fun, which fully repaid all who were here is no one responsible for the there is no one responsible for the producers there. New prolific territory is using developed in many localities, and by inthe sort of thing is to go on for any inguity. It really means that the personnel of time. I tell you oil will go down to seventy-five cents a barrel. There is but one remedy for better

prices, and that remedy the producer

Supply Men in Distress.

Manufacturers and dealers in pil well supplies, too, are are beginning to recognize this fact, and are cothat their business is materially falling off. Especially is this evidenced in lo-calities abounding in light calibre walls, when the low price paid for oil and the high prices demanded for ma-chinery and supplies has virtually enacted a prohibitory law against further operations. The supply men in these ocalities say producers are unable to neet their bills, and that they are forced to carry them, and that unless matters soon take a turn for the better, they will be forced into the hole umo of business is greatly falling off, and that they are stocked up with high-priced goods, and if the high rates are cut, they will be unable to meet their obligations. Upon the whole, they think the outlook is anything but en couraging and will not be surprised to see a repetition of the hard pan times which have characterized the oleagin lous industry in the past.

The Garner Pool.

The old Garner pool east of Proctor. in Wetzel county, West Virginia, is making a surprising record, and is destined to cut a considerable figure in the producing arena. Its produc boundaries are being enlarged, while very handsome wells. Since the last review of the Garner pool, the South Penn Oil Company developed a new well in new territory, which has a significant bearing. This new venture was purely a test, and has opened up some new digging that looks reasonably sure. The well is located upon the H. R. Thompson farm, between three-quar ters and a mile to the northeast from the old production. There were but very few who had any faith in results and even the owners themselves thought the gamble was a poor one. When the well below the level of the Gordon sand pay, it looked rather dusty and was reported a failure. The commuch in drilling the well they would try the effects of a liberal shot, which resulted in a forty-barrel well. Taking this venture as a cue, they have made several locations and will, as fast as possible, test the new lead. The South Penn Company's No. 7, Henry Garner farm, is still maintaining a daily production of 270 barrels, while their No. 12, located on the same farm, has an of ficial gauge of 230 barre's a day.

Quite an important wildcat well was completed this week in the shallow sand territory in Tyler county, by Mc-Cormick & Company, located upon the Morris farm. By a majority of local fraternity, the well was thought to be located for a winner, and that some new territory would be opened up. But the drill recorded a dusty story and put a quietus on further explorations in this latitude.

The South Penn people completed an important well recently in the Piney Fork pool, and in the Gordon sand, which verges closely upon the dry hole

In the Fairview district, in Marion county, they were more successful, find-ing a 250 barrel well on the Samuel Jefferson farm.

Wolf Summit

The northeast extension of the Wolf Summit field is making one of the finest records in the southwest dis-trict. The wells are not only large, but hold up beyond the expectations of ev-ery one interested in the pool. J. M. Guffey has two wells on the Harrison Flannigan farm, doing one hundred and thirty barrels each, while the South Penn Oil Company has six or eight more in the northeast extension, and none of them have a record of less than one hundred and twenty-five bar-

A message at this writing from the South Penn Oil Company's gusher in the Wallace district, located on the Whiteman farm, says the well is making a production of over one thousand barrels a day. It is thought by well he percentage of gain is date.

As compared with April, there were completed in May, over half a hundred more wells, although in the aggregate there was a falling off of about six pens a falling off of about six pens initial well is to be taken as a hundred barrels in new production. But criterion of future operations, a big production may be reasonably counted

The Kanawha Oll Company's good luck has not yet deserted them in their explorations in Weizel county, W. Va. Since last week's account of their dosanders on Mod's run, located upon the ritory in the sunny south more than L. S. Holt farm, one doing two hunkept up its large production. And it is dred and fifty barrels a day, and the other one thirty-five barrels a day. This week the South Penn Off Company ran up against a rank Gordon sand duster on the M. J. Clark farm on Richwood
